Owldom Meets Sensational

In The Twilight Zone

Digital: 3 November 2026
Cassette & CD: 23 November 2026

Sensational created his own universe with him as the central star. Owldom Meets Sensational In The Twilight Zone is his final transmission. Once again, he demonstrates his unique talent across a wide range of unusual genres.

Sensational was the emcee du jour of the true underground heads. Entering the game from leftfield, instead of gravitating to the centre, he unblinkingly moved farther out. Technicalities or obstacles weren't of relevance for him. Words needed to be put out.

Owldom is an enigma. Rumor has it he's a true Berliner who's been a fixture on the nightlife scene since the '80s and has been working as promoter and DJ since the '90s. Why is he only making his debut now with this album? What held him back? The traumatic abuse of his childhood and the resulting hearing loss certainly played a role. This album is meant to encourage traumatised, hearing-impaired musicians worldwide.

After being out of touch for over 15 years a chance encounter online led to an unlikely pairing. Owldom becoming at first Sensational's sponsor, then his album producer and finally his last booking agent. Each step following along the artist's wishes. Owldom offered Sensational all of his best tracks and let him pick. The collaboration proved to be difficult. The album mix was finalised the day before the passing of Sensational became public. A spooky coincidence.

While listening to the tunes one finds hints suggesting that the vocalist was subconsciously already on his way out. 'Ghosting' sounds like a deeply emotional self-reflection, while looking at the traces of the past in the rearview mirror. The instrumental itself and the title are five years old. It seems as though the song had simply been waiting to come true.

Sensational, the scarred savant. A malfunctioning receiver transmitting the genius frequency. Creating raw nuggets out of the street's dust. This is his legacy.
